

Eden Financial boosts fixed income expertise

19 May 2009

Eden Financial Limited has expanded its multi-asset class investment expertise with the recruitment of Thomas Leah as a Global Fixed Income Analyst.

According to Chairman of Eden Financial Stephen Massey “Tom Leah’s appointment is an important strategic step forward as we continue to build and diversify our asset and revenue base. Our objective is to offer independent and expert perspectives across a range of asset classes. Fixed income, an area where we are already strong, is becoming an increasingly important focus for the firm.”

Curtis Childs, Managing Director of Wealth Management said, “The investment professionals at Eden are excited to have a growing team of asset class specialists providing objective opinions on strategy and security selection to aid investment decision making. Tom has excellent analytic skills and understanding of fixed income as an asset class, a critical component of portfolio management.”

Tom joins Eden’s Wealth Management division from Citi Alternative Investments where he spent four years as a credit analyst and portfolio manager. His team was responsible for a significant portfolio of interest rate securities ranging from straight debt to credit default swaps. At Citi he also gained significant experience in a wide range of derivative instruments. Prior to this, he spent two years at Morgan Stanley as a Risk Analyst and holds a first class degree from the London School of Economics.

Ends.
